

WPATH 2022 AWARD RECIPIENTS

WORLD PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR TRANSGENDER HEALTH

Harry Benjamin (January 12, 1885–August 24, 1986) was a German American endocrinologist and sexologist, widely known for his clinical work with transgender people.

Apart from endocrinology and sexology, he worked on life extension and would now also be described as a gerontologist. Benjamin himself lived to be 101. Benjamin was married to Gretchen, to whom he dedicated his 1966 major work, for 60 years.

In 1979 the Harry Benjamin International Gender Dysphoria Association was formed, using Benjamin's name by permission. The group consists of therapists and psychologists who devised a set of Standards of Care (SOC) for the treatment of gender dysphoria, largely based on Benjamin's cases, and studies.[13] It later changed its name to The World Professional Association for Transgender Health (WPATH), but still reveres its links to Harry Benjamin.

LGBTQ+ Victim Advocacy Initiative, Eskenazi Health

Eskenazi Health established a Gender Health Program in Indiana to provide health care services for adolescent and adult transgender patients. As the program grew, it became apparent to the providers that many patients who came seeking safe care had past histories of assault or victimization. In 2021 Eskenazi Health launched the LGBTQ+ Victim Advocacy Initiative to ensure that all transgender and gender diverse (TGD) victims of violence can connect with a culturally competent victim advocate at any time.

The initiative funded two victim advocates, both of whom self-identify as part of the LGBTQ+ community which offers lived experience that is integral to their role. The victim advocates provide victim services to TGD survivors of violence and provide cultural competency trainings to staff throughout the organization on how to better provide culturally competent care to the LGBTQ+ patient population.

In 15 months, the LGBTQ+ victim advocates at Eskenazi Health have connected 257 TGD-identifying survivors of sexual assault and violence to 494 services. Services included mental health counseling, support groups, housing, basic needs, community resources, legal services, and more. The LGBTQ+ victim advocates have provided 6 cultural competency trainings throughout the organization. Eskenazi Health's innovative approach to delivering services to LGBTQ+ patients through dedicated and specially trained advocates has addressed an important care gap and demonstrated the clear need for victim advocacy services for the LGBTQ+ community.

The LGBTQ+ Victim Advocacy Initiative at Eskenazi Health was recognized with the Award for Professional Innovation in Victim Services by the United States Department of Justice and Office for Victims of Crime during their 2022 National Crime Victims' Service Awards.

The Eskenazi Health team will continue advocating for their LGBTQ+ patients, as they encourage other states and programs to expand services for LGBTQ+ victims of violence.

Clara Leyns MS, SLP, PhD Student

Clara Leyns (she/her) finished her MSc in Speech, Language and Hearing Sciences summa cum laude at Ghent University (Belgium) in 2017. Graduated in 2018 with a teaching degree, her academic hunger started growing. This eventually led to the start of her PhD in 2019, under supervision of prof. Evelien D'haeseleer (she/her, Ghent University, SLP), prof. Guy T'Sjoen (he/him, Ghent University, endocrinologist), and prof. Dominique Morsomme (she/her, University of Liège, SLP), she set up her protocol to investigate the effectiveness of speech therapy in transgender women. Researching this topic gave her the opportunity to write several scientific papers in high quality peer reviewed journals and going on a research stay at the Karolinska Institute (Sweden). She helps transgender women, transgender men, and non-binary persons to find a voice which fits their gender identity, not only through research, but also as a speech language pathologist in the voice clinic of the Ghent University Hospital and through other research projects. Besides her academical and clinical activities, she has been a diversity coordinator at Scouting Flanders since 2019, advocating for a more gender diverse organization. She expanded her knowledge in diverse research and clinical transgender topics and is determined to implement these in her future academical career, but also within the transgender community.
