We are excited to announce Episode 2 of our new virtual WPATH Journal Club on Thursday, June 3, 2021: 11am – 12pm Eastern Time (GMT-4). This online meeting format, featuring articles from the International Journal of Transgender Health (IJTH), allows participants the opportunity to delve further into transgender health research topics and ask questions of the authors. In addition to earning valuable CME credits and ANCC contact hours, the Journal Club provide attendees with the valuable opportunity to interact with the experts doing cutting-edge research in transgender health. Please see below for more information about Episode 2:

Article of Discussion: Exploring the mental health experiences of young trans and gender diverse people during the Covid-19 pandemic. Jones, B., Bowe, M., McNamara, N., Guerin, E., and Carter, T.

Dr. Beth Jones

Dr. Beth Jones (she/her) is an academic psychologist at Nottingham Trent University, UK. She has a particular interest in how marginalised identities interact with health and well-being. Beth's work has primarily been concerned with reducing health inequalities within the trans and gender diverse population. Her current work is interested in mental health outcomes associated with the Coronavirus pandemic. This work has included exploring the mental health benefits of helping during the crisis, understanding Coronavirus-related financial stress on wellbeing, determining the protective role family can play in alleviating loneliness among people with an eating disorder while living through the pandemic and, understating the mental health and wellbeing challenges young trans and gender diverse people face resulting from COVID-19.

To date, Beth has published 15 peer reviewed publications and has presented her work at several international conferences such as WPATH and EPATH.

Prof. Dr. Jon Arcelus

Prof. Jon Arcelus, MD, PhD (he/him) has been working in the field of transgender health for over 10 years. He is a Full Professor in Mental Health and in Transgender Health at the Medical School of the University of Nottingham, UK, having his clinical base at the Nottingham National Centre for Transgender Health in the United Kingdom.

Prof. Arcelus has over 130 peer reviewed publications, book chapters and books. In addition, he has obtained external research funding of over 4.5 million British pounds. He has supervised numerous PhD and Master students.

Prof. Arcelus has been working closely with WPATH for a number of years, having been appointed as a Co-Chair of the Standards of Care 8th Edition. He also works closely with charities within the UK, such as Mermaids, Gendered Intelligence and Trans Learning Partnership. Prof. Arcelus is trained as a General Practitioner, Psychiatrist, and Psychotherapist with special interest in young people.
